< About “Village Master” >

The setting could be in the distance past or the distant future, and the residents of this world form their society as a “village”. This is a simulation game that a player instructs villagers on developing, planting, harvesting, and trimming to develop villages.

Let’s chase off monsters coming down on you in cooperation with villagers! Each villager has his/her own name and face with a specific characteristic such as high carrying capacity or low fighting capacity.

As each has likes and dislikes, it is very important to organize a team in consideration of their specialties to bring down enemies.

A player can plan his/her own tactics; one might organize a team with villagers with high striking ability to strengthen a defense and other villagers build houses.

The game has full volume of 7 stages including tutorial.

Do your best to clear all stages!
